Crutchfield walked in from the clerk's office. He was given a seat by Judge Witt and remained there all the morning, a deeply interested spectator of the proceedings.

The Opening.

The Opening.

Mr. Folkes, addressing the jury, explained that A. Chadwick Burton was on trial on a charge of petit larceny, in that, by false pretense and misrepresentation, he had obtained, through his authorized agents and co-workers, the sum of $3 from O. J. Sands, "It is unusual," said he, "to make an opening statement in a petit larceny case, but this is an unusual case." He then stated that he expected to prove that Burton came to Richmond, bringing three women, whom he claimed were, one his wife and the other two his nieces; that he employed these to go around town and solicit funds under false pretense; that such funds as they secured were paid over to him, that he knew that they were making misrepresentations in order to procure funds for his use, and, he aided, abetted and counceled them to make these representations.

Mr. Folkes, in conclusion, said that he would prove that Burton and his agents had gone around under the cloak of the church of God to rob people.

Mr. Wise, replying, said he did so merely as a matter of courtesy to the Commonwealth's Attorney, and all he had to say was that they expected to disprove every allegation.

Evidence Opens Up.

Evidence Opens Up.

Rev. H. L. Weston was called as the first witness, and a youthful looking man of small stature and a round face made his way from the ante-room to the wit-chair.

Watson said he was Epworth Methodis t

arch, located on Randolph Street, b.

came to him on the ath of December ad introduced himself as the manager of the Burton Lyceum Bureau, and proiosed to give an entertainment for the benefit of the church in the Anex of Murphy's Hotel. The witness gave in detail the business-like conversation he had with Burton, who assured him that the ladles of Epworth Church would not have any responsibility of any kind;
would not have to have any printing done; would not have to do any advertising, and would not have to sell any tickets. After consultation with several selling members of the church witness into a contract with Burton. The here produced and read, house the min the hands of the first question, when he would make the first question, he bluntly declared that the contract was a fraud from top to bottom, and here followed a lengthy controversy between counsel and witness as to what constituted fraudlent features in a contract, the Mayor still insisting upon answering many questions in one and replying to them in his own inmittable way. Counsel insisted upon a straightforward answer to the question: "Is there anything on the face the contract to show fraud or the especially O. J. Sands, had be the witness did not me that a counsel war had a counsel war tising, and would not have to sell any tickets. After consultation with several teading members of the church witness entered into a contract with Burton. The contract was here produced and read. It was a printed document with ample blank lines filled in with pen. It was drawn up in regular form and liberally interprised with legal phraseology, and had many such words as the "aforesaid," etc. It was made between A. Chadwick Burton, mgr. of the Burton Lyceum Bureau, "the party of the let part," and Rev. H. L. Weston, "the party of the second part." Its main feature was that it promised the church people were to get 20 per cent, of the value of tickets taken up at the door when the concert was given.

Objections and Exceptions

Objections and Exceptions.

When the Commonwealth undertook to prove that the women were apart of the Bureau, counsel for defense objected taken the ground that his being a case of petit largeny, and a specific case betaken the ground that his being a case of petit larceny, and a specific case being in point, any testimony that dosen't bear upon the obtaining of $2 from O. J. Sands, is irrelevant. The court permitted the questions concerning the acts of the women and an exception was noted.

witness resuming said he first met the three women at the Langhley House, where he had an engagement with Burton. They were introduced to him by Burton, as his wife and two nieces Burton frequently told the witness that his wife and nieces were getting along splendidly selling tickets. Witness said Burton told him his nieces were his coworkers.

The crossesymments.

The cross-examination was brief, but pointed. Mr. Weston could not remember what street the Langley was on, or whether Franklin was the next street to Main or the second from Main. He recently came to Richmond as pastor.

The Star Witness.

The Star Witness.

The Star Witness.

"Call Mayor McCarthy next," said Mr. Folkes, and then everybody commenced to shuffle around in their seats and to show signs of an expectation of some real live wire fun. The mayor, still smiling, came hurriedly from the witness pen, and, after taking the chair, he reached down in his inside pocket and drew out a batch of papers, several long and well filled envelopes and two pairs of spectacles. During his stay in the witness char, about an hour and a half, he frequently changed glasses.

After explaining, in answer to Mr. Folkes's question, that he was the mayor and that he knew the accused "probably better than arybody else in this part of the country does," the contract was shown him. To declared that it was in his opinion a fraud from beginning to end. Burton told witness that he (Burton) was the hyceum Bureau; that he was the whole thing, and that his two neles were who paid them $10 per week and their board. Another exception was here noted. Witness then proceeded to give an account of the interesting interview he had with Burton, "Mrs. Burton" and the nieces at the Langley, and how he got the books in which was a list of the contributors to the concert fund. He recognized three little red memorandum books that were produced as the same he made Burton produce that night at the Langley, Counsel objected to the introduction of the books, on the ground that they were Burton's property, gotten from him under threats of arrest and imprisonment. Objection overruled and another exception noted.

exception noted.

Resuming, the Mayor said he repeated Resuming, the Mayor said he repeated the demand made at Murphy's that Burton should make a fair settlement with Weston, and that in order to arrive at a fair settlement it was necessary to see the books. Burton and the women dended that there were any books, and he then said: "Very well, you will get those books or go to the station house." The Mayor insisted upon telling things in his own way, and often he answered two or more, even a half dozen questions when only one had been asked. He went over the whole story from the first time he had the interview with Burton and his wife and nieces in the Mayor's office, through the exciting times at the Murphy his wife and nieces in the Mayor's office through the exciting times at the Murph annex, and down to the more exciting scenes at the Langley, and he did it is the same manner as in the Police Court when Burton was on trial there.

Cross-Examination.

Mr. Wise first wok the witness in hand for cross-examination. The cross-ques-tioning at first was in the nature of an effort to show that Burton positively refused to give up the memorandum book and finally produced the books after h en had been threaten arrest and imprisonment. The witness insisted that he merely said he would

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Berry's for Clothes."

For traveling anywhere, par-ticularly from your home to your business, here's just the right coat for just the right

Just right for his weatherJust right for this weatherlong, medium weight$17.75 instead of $25 and $80.
If this particular coat does not fit your requirementshere are nine other varieties$9.75 up.

know they are worth more because we've compared them with other good makes.

Yet they're being sacrificed!

Suits that sold up to $6.00 at $2.85.

Suits, same way.

Underwear sale indexed in ur corner window--look, then turn to the stock inside.

insisted upon $5, but he gave only $2.

Witness said he told Mrs. Burton that he never intended to give another cent to a professional solicitor, but if she was a member of the society, lived in Richmond and all of his money would go to the society he would contribute, otherwise not. She assured him that such was the case, and then went on to tell him how many worthy poor the society had helped, how many more they had to help and they had hoped he would do more for them. He gave them $2 and then they handed him two tickets to the annex concert and went out. On cross-examination, Mr. Sands said he gave the tickets to his stenographer, who went to the concert, A circular was given him with the tickets, which proved to be the concert programme. Witness read it to the jury.

The cross-examination was lengthy and rigid, the main purpose being to show that Mr. Sands's idea that the women were members of the society and Richmonders resulted from his own inference rather than from the language of the woman.

"Berry's for Clothes."

paid more for them -- and we know they are worth more

Suits and Overcoats that sold

Suits and Overcoats that sold

up to $7.50 at $4.75.

· our the around right hundred and with water the two is Siglat gives

Albert 6. Justin Mathe 7 School

· 25.021.6 小文学》。我们是这种教育的

and and I have the contract to the Jurity artify that in the Swale good hours lips, and, having released his grip upon the arms of the chair, stroked his mustache as if striving to smother emotion and hold back a flood of tears, but he kept his blured eyes on the woman who had just sworn he was her lawful husband. It was plain that Mr. Folkes was very nervous, and even Judge Witt looked uneasy. The only calm lawyer in the court-room was Mr. Glibert Pollock. He had arisen from his chair and stood smilling and waiting for the buz ner as the above, and at times the spats between counsel and witness were spicy and a trifle sensational. The witness concerning that the spats more than once said that he judged of the fraudulency of a contract by the woman.

Mr. Sands left the witness chair and everybody waited for Mr. Folks called the court-room was Mr. Gilbert Policick. He had arisen from his own inferament and language of the woman.

Mr. Sands left the witness chair and everybody waited for Mr. Folks called the court-room was Mr. Gilbert Policick. He had arisen from his own inferament and language of the woman.

Mr. Sands left the witness chair and everybody waited for Mr. Folks called the court-room was Mr. Gilbert Policick. He had arisen from his own inferament and language of the woman.

n nesses for the Commonwealth was resumed.

Mr. W. Fred Richardson was the first witness introduced after the recess. His testimony was that Miss Hamerly had asked him to contribute $5 to the Dorcus Society, representing herself to be a member of the same. Witness gave a check for $3, and after learning from Pastor Weston that the society was to get only a small percentage of the money he stopped payment of check at the bank, and Burton called on him for an explanation. When he told Burton his information.

What did you know about Burton before you married him?"

"I knew very little except what he told me, he had just returned from Belgium, where he was United States Consult. He said that he wore them in Belgium because they made him look more distinguished. He said that Persident Arthur had appointed him because he was an old school-mate, and he even told me what the President said to him.

Was Also Rich. was Also Rich.

"Well, Burton, how are your politics?" said the President.

"T'm for the administration," he replied. And he was appointed, so he told me. He also told me that he would not allow his wife to sell tickets for any fake affair.

Colonel William H. Palmer, the well known banker, was the next witness. He gave the women a check for $5 on their representation that they were soliciting funds for the Dorcas Society, one of them representing herself as the treasurer of the society. He did not read the circular and never heard of any tickets until after he had given his check for $5. made payable to the order of "Mrs. A. C. Burton, treasurer." Then they gave him five tickets, which were not used. Cross-examination brought out no new facts.

Mr. Hampton Fleming, the next witness, was solicited to contribute $5. He declined to pay money, but told them he would give them candy or other goods.

Was Also Rich.

"Well, Burton, how are your politics?" said the President.

"T'm for the administration," he replied. And he was appointed, so he told me. He also told me that he was very rich and had interests in mining property worth thousands, and he showed me a life insurance policy for $5.000. He told me that the home of, Mr. Was Also Was Also Was Also Was and he was to work.

"We was appointed, so he told me. He also told me that he he was very rich and had interests in mining property worth thousands, and he showed me a life insurance policy for $5.000. He told me that photocome was 129,000 a year, and that he home of, Mr. Was Also Was Also Was Also Was Also Was and he was very rich and had interests in mining property worth thousands, and he showed me a life insurance policy for $5.000. He told me that the home of, Mr. Was Also Was Also Was Also Was Also Was Also Was and he work.

"We were married at the home of, Mr. Was Also Was Also Was Also Was Also Was Also Was and he was to work.

"We were married at the home of, Mr. Was Also Was Also Was Also Was and he was to work.

"Was Also Was Also Was against the week an explanation. When he told Burton his information was that the church

ness, was solicited to contributed $\frac{8}{2}$. He declined to pay money, but told them he would give them candy or other goods for the proposed entertainment. She insisted on getting money, but finally accepted an order for twenty-five pounds of candy. A day or so later Burton called with the order and got the candy. Later three boxes of the candy. Burton called with the order and got the candy. Later three boxes of the candy were produced in court. Defense cross-examined witness to show that the proper proportion of the candy, twenty per cent, went to the Dorcas Society.

Mr. W. T. Cooke, of the Langley, testified briefly that Burton engaged board at his house for himself, wife and two necess.

An Humble Member.

Mr. Frank S. Woodson testified that Burton came to him at The Times-Dispatch office and asked that the programme for the concert be published in the paper. Witness asked Burton if he was the pastor of the Epworth Church, and the reply was: "Mo: only an humble and the reply was: "No; only an humble

Rev. Dr. E. L. Pell testified that the Rev. Dr. E. L. Pell testified that the women came to him and solicited a contribution for the poor that were being looked after by the members of the Dorcas Society of Epworth Church. Dr. Pell never saw the circular, and never heard of the concert until after he had given his check. Then, to his surprise, they gave him five tickets to the concert and a circular, all of which he cert and a circular, all of which he threw in the waste basket.

H. W. Rountree was reminded by Miss Hamerly that he gave $5 the year before, which he didn't remember, but he gave $5 then, and the ladies handed him five 46 then, and the ladies handed him five tickets. The concert was mentioned and he saw the circular or programme before he paid his money; did not read them. He got five tickets, which he gave to people in his store.

Two other unimportant witnesses were briefly examined, and then Rev. Mr. Weston was recalled, but the hour of 6 having arrived court adjourned to Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. His Honor explaining that to-day being a legal holiday, a session of the court court not be held. The jury was admonished not to talk about the case and not to read newstalk about the case and not to read news wife of the man who called himself A.

CONSTERNATION (Continued from First Page.)

Thanwick Burton.

Before answering she produced a marlage certificate, which read as follows:

This certifies that on the 37th day of July, in the year of our Lord, 1824, Albert C. Burton and Hattle N.

Critchion were united by me in the

Caree a Cold in Openey, Orio in 2 Days

WALTER D. MOSES & CO.

103 East Broad Street.

OLDEST MUSIC HOUSE IN VIRGINIA.

The Selection

Make it from the Largest Line of Musical Instruments. Victor Talking Machines and Pianolas at Moses & Co.'s only.

The advantages of buying a Piano or other musical instruments from the house carrying the largest and best line is plain to all.

Besides having the really best instruments to select from, you are protected against any sudden increase of prices by the makers.

These are a few of the reasons why it pays to buy from us. Then, our terms and prices are the best to be

And here only do you find the genuine Pianola and Pianola Pianos-the one investment that affords the most pleasure to every member of the family. ...

All Pianolas are equipped with the Metrostyle. A composer plays, and the Metrostyle marks every shade of feeling on a line; by simply following the Metrostyle any one can play as the composer did.

bond of marriage at PhHadeiphia, Pa.

WM. DAYTON ROBETRS,

Witnesses:
Joseph Swayne,
A, E. Swayne.

Mrs. Burton said, "He has tried a thousand times to get that paper from me."

"Who is the woman who he introduced nere as his wife?"

"Her name is well known to me, and she now lives on Mt. Vernon Street in Philadelphia, formerly she lived at on Wallace Street, Philadelphia. Her mother with whom she lives, is also well known. well known. "What did you know about Burton be-

"Well, Burton, how are your politics?" said the President. "I'm for the administration," he re-plied.

it was an honor he could not refuse, although he was too wealthy to work,

"I believed him, and sold my property so that we could move to Indianapolis to be with President Harrison. He took the money and we left Philadelphia, I had become so afraid of him that I did whatever he told me.

"On the day we reached Indianapolis we met President Harrison in the wirest met President Harrison in the street face to face.

I knew him by sight, for I had seen him after I said to Mr. Burton: "There is the President. Why don't you speak to him?"

He protended he didn't see him, and then finally said: "We have had a quarrel. He didn't treat me right, and I don't latend to rates him."

"That was the last of President Har-

"His story about him was just like his being consul to Belgium, and being a school mate of President Arthur. Had All Her Money.

"After leaving Indianapolis we wandered all over the country until we reached San Francisco. Mr. *Burton treated me cruelly, but he had all my money and I had not a cent. He would not give me a postage stamp to write to my relatives. He was a Mason. an Elk and a Pythian, and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and told me he used the state of the country and the count the house.

"Mr. Burton left me in April, 1898, and since that time has introduced another woman as his wife. I had him arrested for non-support, and I got $30 a month for four months, after which he stopped paying. A suit is now pending in the Philadelphia courts for my divorce.

paying. A suit is now pending in the Philadelphia courts for my divorce.

"Mr. Burton has written a lot of things in the papers about himself. He has said at various times that he was theatrieal manager for Mary Anderson, Kate Claxton, John T. Raymond and a lot of others, but these assertions are not true, I never caught him telling the truth during all the time I lived with him," declared the wife, with emphasis. "He wrote to me after he left me and offered me $100 and my diamonds, which he had taken and given to another woman, if I would get a divorce. I refused, but I got back some of my diamonds by having him arrested. The woman still has two of my rings.

"Charles F. Linde, of Philadelphia, who is his lawyer and who was in court with him to-day knew all about my husband."

"How did you happen to know that your husband was in trouble here?"

"I saw it in the Philadelphia papers, and I said—"That's my husband—He's up to his tricks again. I cut out the notice and enclosed it, with a plotter of Mr. Burton, to the chief of police of Richmond and wrote him that the man was my husband and that I had not seen him for some time, Before I could get an answer by mail, Sergeant Gib-Rooving of the proposed in the proposed in the papers and out glass.

Is the track franchise ean beautiful the scale of the sculistic privileges by a private corporation. Mrs. Mary Wood Coombs, of Boston, who will be pleasantly recalled as apper mannen boarder at the Henry Clay in mannen boarder at the Henry Cl called on me at No. 1224 Spence Street.

That was on December 29th.
"I could talk for days about my husband but it can all be said in a very few words."
Then she said a few very expressive word.

Burton Refused to Talk. A. Chadwick Bifton at the Gilbert Hotel last night, refused to talk. He was told what his wife had said, and of the charges she had made. He to talk now, when Mr. Burton is being tried. Whatever he said would be used shut. We have no reply to make to the Burton admitted during the day, how-ever, that the woman was really Mrs. Burton.

WAS A FINE SUCCESS

The Ashland Choral Club is

ASHLAND, VA., January 18 .- The ar tists' concert, under the management of Mrs. Edward Latham Quaries, in the new school building here to-night, proved a decided success, the hall being crawded to the limit. The singing of choice selections by Miss Pattle Isaacs, of Richmond; Mrs. Quaries, Mr. R. Lynn Tucker and Mr. A. E. Coulter were particularly appreciated. Mrs. R. E. Blackwell presided at the plano as accompanist in a masterful manner. Mr. Victor Menzel, violinist, rendered several pieces, particularly Raff's "Cavatina," which was much applauded. The proceeds were for the benefit of the new plano fund of the public school, and were quite satisfactory.

Mr. Charles K. Pendleton, administrator of the estate of his son, Thomas W. Pendleton, has just received notice of the decision of the Supreme Court of Virginia affirming the decision of the lower courts of $6,000 damages from the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Rail-Mrs. Edward Latham Quarles, in the new mond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Company for the killing of his son here two years ago on the tracks of this

The rehearsal of the Ashland Choral Club last night in the college chapel of Gound's "Redemption." under the direc-Elk and a Pythian, and told me he used these orders to help him in every city and town we visited. He said he didn't care for the orders, but they gave him a chance to get introduced to the people he wished to meet.

"I have known him to make $500 in a single day with his schemes.

"Had Him Arrested."

"When we returned to Philadelphia my friends had him put out of the Knights of Pythias on account of his treatment of me. We lived at No. $10 Spruce Street, and in August, 1895, he tried to get Dr. Park, No. $23 Spruce Street, to say that I was insane. Dr. Park said 'no,' and left the house.

"Me Furton left me in April, 1896, and "The Furton left me in April, 1896, and the severage and water and gas plant the house."

onn D. Harris, of Philadelphia, for building a sewerage and water and gas plant at Ashland. Mr. Harris represents Philadelphia capterlists, and will spend the day in Ashland to-morrow, going over the ground here. The object of his visit now is to ascertain if the franchise can be satisfactorily secured in Ashland for these exclusive privileges by a private corporation.

Bears the Chat H. Fletchin.

in marrhane with thoun country the last in the plane of Midalelphia County Transportant Some CERTIFICATE OF MARRIAGE SHOWN BY MR S. H. N. BURTON.

ley, or had not preduced the books, and he replied that he didn't know, as he didn't have to confront that situation.

Mr. Pollock took the witness in hand, and again the whole story was gone over, and the astute lawyer tangled the Mayor up considerably on a number of points, but no material new facts were brought out.

out.

In reply to Mr. Folkes, the Mayor said the women told him in Burton's presence that they had turned over all the money they had collected to Burton.
Mr. Pollock asked if they admitted turning over the $2 collected from Sands, and witness said, No.

That concluded the Mayor's testimony, and counsel requested him to go back to the witness room, as he might be called again, but Judge Witt said: "Take your seat in the court-room, Mr. Mayor," and Mr. Mayor drew up a chair and sat down by Mr. Folkes the balance of the morning.

Detective C. A. Gibson was the next witness. He went with the mayor to the annex and to the Langley on the night of the concert. He corroborated the mayof the concert. He corroborated the mayor's testimony as to what occurred at these places, and in cross-examining him counsel for defence pursued the same lines as with the mayor, endeavoring mainly to show that the memorandum books procured and the settlement made was the result of threats of imprisonment. Defence also asked questions of this witness to show that the mayor was willing to effect a settlement on the basis of the showing made by the books, although he had charged great and many frauds.

Victim in the Case.

Victim in the Case.

Mr. O. J. Sands, the president of the American National Bank, was called, He did not know Burton, but had met a woman representing herself to be Mrs. A. C. Burton. She came to his office one day in early December, accompanied by two young ladies. Defence objected to witness stating what was their business, tecanise it had not been shown that Burton was aware of their false pretense. Court admitted the question to a further ruling, and witness said the women came to him to get a subscription to the Dorcas Society of Epworth Church. They told him he gave $5 last year and Aghte Society was in greater need now than then. They also told him they were members of the society, and dived in Richmond. They some papers, while he kept one eye on the door leading from the rear room of the clerk's office. The door opened and a well but plainly dressed woman entered a well but plainly dressed woman entered the room, accompanied by one of the court officers. Only about three men in the court-room had ever seen the woman before, and none knew who she was or what was her business. The two attor-neys for the defense looked at each other in a quizzical, startled way. Everybody peered at the woman as she approached Clerk Christian's desk, and everybody held his breath when the clerk took up the Bible and commenced to swear the the Bible and commenced to swear the udden apparition in as a witness in the

In the meantime Burton had turned In the meantime Burton had turned as pale as ashes; his eyes were no longer hollow; they had bulged out as if they were about to jump from their very sockets. He pulled himself to the front of his chair, and while he was actually wringing his hands, he fixed his bulging eyes upon the woman as he moved slowly those the fixed his bulging eyes upon the wo-man as she moved slowly from the clerk's desk to the witness chair, as if he would stare her out of counte-nance. She glanced at him as she took her seat. Burton's face then turned red, he clutched the arms of the chair he was sitting in, his mas-sive frame shook like an aspen leaf, while he bit his lips nervously, but kept his gaze upon the woman. kept his gaze upon the woman.

Mr. Folkes asked the woman: "What is your name?'

The answer came in a low, but clear and distinct tone: "Hattle N. Burton."
"Do you know the prisoner at the bar?" was the next question. Again the low, distinct voice was heard, and the witness said: "Yes; he is A. Chadwick Burton, my husband."

Wonderful Effect.

to the introduction of this witness," and the cool, smiling lawyer took his seat. Mr. Folkes jumped to his feet and comnenced to address the court. He was interrupted by the court who ordered the jury withdrawn, and the lawyers proceeded to discuss the objection to the introduction of the "real" Mrs. Burton as a witness.

that Burton introduced a woman in mond as Mrs. A. C. Burton, that woman had gone about town as A. C. Burton soliciting money from peo-ple and telling people that she was Mrs. He simply wished to prove by this witness that Mrs. A. C. Burton was not in Richmond at that time and never was in Richmond until 5 o'clock last night. He would not ask a half dozen questions. wished to prove by this tions.

Mr. Pollock again took the floor and said in effect that Burton was charged with petit larceny and the question as to who his wife was or where she was at the time the crime is alleged to have been committed had nothing to do with his guilt or innocence. Mr. Wise spoke very briefly along the same line and made reference to a recent decision of the Supreme Court that sustained his view of the matter.

The court took the same view as the defence and ruled that Mrs. Burton could not be a witness, She was at once escorted to Mayor McCarthy's office downstairs.

stairs.

Court then took a recess until 4:30 and everybody went to talking about the sensational turn the case had taken.

Down in the Mayor's office Mrs. Burton talked very freely with the newspaper men. She was well-drossed in a skirr of dark cloth, a cream colored silk waist and wore a black hat with handsome feathers. She is well educated, talks well and her general demeanor is good. In her early life she was a school teacher.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Said He Was Only "Humble Member of Epworth Church.
Court reassembled at 4:30 in the afternoon, and the examination sediments.